DISPUTED TERRITORY--AMERICAN PRESS.

The Puget Sound Herald, July 29, has the following in regard to the occupation of San Juan island :-

"The U. S. Steamer Massachusetts, Capt. Fauntleroy, left Olympia on Saturday last Fauntleroy, left Olympia on Saturday last for Bellingham Bay and San Juan Island, under the orders of Lieut. Col. Casey, of Fort Stellacoom. It has been determined to take possession of San Juan, and place a garrison upon the island for protection against the Northern Indians. This is a very judicious step, and one that is not taken any too soon; for a lengthened delay in asserting American supremacy there, would have rendered our final possession a too Condition of Collonists. would have rendered our final possession a matter of much greater difficulty than it both as alien and inferior. There is some now is. In another point of view it assumes an equal degree of importance. From this point the Northern Indians can From this point the Northern Indians can be more readily intercepted, and their predatory incursions into our territory prevented, than from any available point on the Sound. This, we learn, is the leading incentive to the step—protection to American interests, American lives, and American property on Puget Sound. The garrison at Bellingham Bay, or Fort Bellingham, will be removed to San Juan, and the steamer Massachusetts will act as an auxiliary in restraining the hostile savages. steamer Massachusetts will act as an auxiliary in restraining the hostile savages. Her duty will be to run up and down the Straits, stopping at intervals at San Juan, and overhauling all parties of savages that may be seen in the waters thereabouts. To enable her to perform efficiently the duties assigned her, a small detachment of troops will be placed on board. This is putting her to a good account

The Port Townsend posts is to be abandoned, and the garrison removed to Fort

Since writing the above, the Massachusetts has arrived at this place, and landed Major Haller and his command from Fort Townsend.

From the Olympia Pioneer & Democrat July 29th, we condense :-

"Our military have just taken a step in the right direction. We learn from good authority that orders have been issued by Gen. Harney to transfer the military post from Bellingham Bay to San Juan Island. This is what should have been done long

In the construction of the treaty a dispute has been raised as to the channel—we claiming the Canal de Harro, and the English the Rosario Straits. Between we claiming the Canal de Harro, and the English the Rosario Straits. Between these two channels are several islands. At the time of the treaty there were no settle ments on either of these islands. Since then, however, some American settlers have gone there; and through the Hudson's Bay Co. some shepherds, have been placed upon San Juan island. That island, with the others, was at its organization included in the limits of Whateom county, and difficulties have already arisen from the collection

The treaty is based upon the principle, that all south of the parallel of forty-nine that all south of the parallel of forty-nine was United States territory, and the deviation made was simply to give Vancouver's Island—only a very small portion of which South of that parallel—to that country. If, then, the question were one of doubt as to the proper channel, a consideration of the intent of the treaty must solve that question in favor of the United States. But it is not a question upon which a doubt should be in favor of the United States. But it is not a question upon which a doubt should be permitted to exist. The Canal de Harro is the broadest, deepest, and most direct channel from the Straits of Fuca to the Gulf of Georgia. And this would not be questioned were it not for the value of the intermediate islands. To England they are valuable, as well for the land, as also that they are supposed to command the southern valuable, as well for the land, as also that they are supposed to command the southern entrance to the Gulf of Georgia. To us they are necessary as a military post, being the only place suitable for the protection of our people from the hordes of northern savages. San Juan is just the place for a post. The Indians must pass within striking distance in coming to and returning from the settlements.

We suppose our neighbors may grumble a little at this summary way of settling the disputed title, but then it is the privilege of John Bull to grumble, and the melly crowd of native born British subjects con-gregated in these new colonies. They have however, the same reason to complain of our post at Steilacoom as at San Juan.

The Colonies are unquestionably treated thing unfortunate in the very name of "colony" and in all the ideas it conveys. It involves both separation and subordination, involves both separation and subordination, and it is exceedingly apt, under certain circumstances, to provoke to separatism and independence. The distinction is perhaps even more in feeling than in actual experience. But feeling is everything. The people of the remote sections of the British Possessions ought to be encouraged to feel that they are British. that they are Britons. Of course we advocate no invasion of their local rights and institutions. The union must be of the nature of a federal one. But it should exist in reality and on some sort of equal footing. The sentiment of a British subject ought to be superior to that of the mere Colonist, as the feeling of an American citizen is to that of a mere citizen of an American State. But at present the Colonists are becoming more Colonists and less British subjects, and this is because they are not practically recognized and treated in a manner fitted to call forth the lights. Form of all principles (There were all principles) higher form of allegiance. They must be embraced in the sympathies of the Brit-ish people on equal terms, and recognized, as they are certainly most willing to be, as in the fullest sense British citizens.—Scottish American Journal.

VICTORIA, V. I.

FRIDAY MORNING, AUG, 5.

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY.

The only question worth mentioning Britain and the United States, is the bounslary from the 49th parallel, to the Strait of Fuca. And it is certainly most unfortunate that occasion has now occurred to stir up ill-feeling between two kindred communities in the North-west, who both trace their ancestors to the tomb-stones of Eugland. Dispassionately as we may desire to view the San Juan affair, we cannot see any reason to justify the American authorities; neither can we discover any act of Capt. Prevost and Mr. Campbell,-with a final ratification by their respective governments. But without notice to our government, of an intention to end the joint commission, an United States' armed force occupies a disputed territory, contrary to the faith, comity, and good feeling existing between the two countries. Had it been the wish of the United States to have ended the Commission, our government should have been served with official notice. This not having been done, it has unquestionably exhibited great discourtesy, and committed an act of aggression, which has ignored the Boundary Commission entirely,- caused our naval and military authorities to proceed at once to San Juan .- and stirred up. unnecessarily, ill-feeling between the two countries, when naught but the most friendly relations should exist. Had the same dignified and conciliatory course been pursued, which was marked out by Mr. Pierce's administration, when difficulty was anticipated in San Juan, in 1855, from the conflicting jurisdictions of the two countries, the boundary would have been defined without an angry word or a single warlike demonstration. was not sufficient to send a military force to San Juan, without notifying our government. And if the Indians were dangerous, and the prompt disposal of a force to repel them, necessary, that certainly could not have given rise to the order issued by Capt. Picket, forbidding any other authority, civil or military, to be exercised, than that of the United States. We must look, then, at carry out a strong measure. The movement receives the unanimous support of the bune. None had landed. press of Washington Territory, the island being claimed as a part of Whatcom county, and that their authority over it has been too long deferred. Consequently it is not unfair to presume that the sole object of the expedition was to secure the possession of San Juan; and that the petition sent in July, to Gen. Harney, by residents of San Juan, praying protection against northern Indians, was the pretext to accomplish it. An opinion gains ground that Mr. Campbell, the American Commissioner, is the author of the imbroglio; and that his government will not till Gen. Harney is heard from will the dize the friendship of two nations.

PROTEST.

On Wednesday, the annexed protest against the occupation of San Juan, was issued and publicly posted at the door of the Treasury. We presume it is done as a mere matter of form, like the order of Cap. Pickett, for the documents on neither side can be of much value. The Treaty, and that alone, is the from New Westminster, bringing eight only document which can authorise the exereise of exclusive Sovereignty. If that can noticing. not he interpreted amicably, and negotiawhich remains unsettled between Great tion fails, no other alternative remains but resort to war. The latter, however, we think extremely improbable, whilst cotton rules in Washington, and calico at Manchester. The North-pastern Boundary assumed a far more threatning aspect than anything which has occurred at San Juan. Gov. Farfield, of Maine, called out the militia on the Arostook, and Sir John Harvey, governor of New Brunswick, ordered forces to the disputed territory. Prisoners were taken on both sides, and actual hostilities existed our government, in regard to the question between Maine and New Brunswick. Yet at issue, calculated to irritate our sensitive after all the boundary which had irritated neighbors. The solution of the boundary the two countries for thirty years, was question lay with the Commissioners, here. Paper bullets will only be fired, and the only claret spilt will be French.

Resignation of Members.

A message was received by His Excellency, submitting a Council Bill. An act to provide for the resignation and vacation of seats in the House of Assembly, for the election of members on vacancies." The bill makes it lawful for a member to tender in writing, to the Speaker, his resignation, which the Speaker is bound to accept, and declare the seat vacant. The seat of and declare the seat vacant. The seat of any member, absent without permission for a whole session, shall be declared vacant, or if he shall renounce, or make oath, or a legal declaration of his intention to renounce allegiance to Her Majesty, or do, or concur in, or adopt any act whereby he may be entitled to become a subject of a may be entitled to become a subject of a foreign state, or shall become bankrupt, within the meaning of the laws in force in this colony, or shall become a public de-faulter, or be attainted of treason, or be convicted of felony, or of any infamous crime, his seat shall be declared vacant. When a vacancy occurs, and a resolution of the House declares it, the Speaker shall issue a writ; but when the House is not in session the Speaker may issue a writ for a new member. Read a first time.

Light Houses. Harbor Dues.

The House then went into committee on the address to his Excellency, in regard to entrance and clearance fees on vessels and boats, &c.; also on the address in relation to Light-houses. Both will be reconsidered on Wednesday next.

Committee rose, and House resumed its sitting. Report adopted.

Vote of Confidence.

Mr. Skinner gave a notice of motion-"That the House begs leave to address his That the House begs leave to address his Excellency, with regard to the difficulty which has occurred by the unjustifiable landing of U. S. troops at Bellevue, and express their entire confidence in the step his Excellency has taken."

Some envarsation accurred in which

Some conversation occurred in which Mr. Yates wanted information as regards the steps which have been taken by his Excellency, before he would assent to it. The consideration was deferred till the next sitting of the House, on Monday next.

OREGON BOUNDARY TREATY .- The country known as Oregon, which was in dispute between Great Britain and the United States, extended from the Mexican line, 42 deg. to 54 deg. 40 min. bordering on the Russian possessions. Mr. Polk, who was elected in 1844, on the party cry of "54.40 or fight," in his inaugural and first and second annual messages, claimed for the United States the whole of this territory; and that her right to it was "clear and unquestionable," The two previous administrations had offered to Great Britain to settle the question on the 49th parallel. This she rejected, or else Mr. Webster, Secretary of State, under Harrison and Tyler, would have agreed with Lord Ashburton, and incorporated it in the treaty of 1842, by which the North-eastern boundary was settled. But Mr. Polk, after threatening to create a rupture between the threatening to create a rupture between the two countries, unless the whole of Oregon was given up, at last backed out, and Mr.

Buchanan, Secretary of State, and Mr. Packenham, British Minister, negotiated the treaty of June, 1846, at Washington, which set the Oregon dispute at rest till the present time. The following from the London Examiner shows that the credit of broil the countries, and suggested an equi-Mr. Yates called for information as to table compromise, taking the 49th parallel what authority the Treasurer demands the as the basis of an adjustment. Mr. Mc as the basis of an adjustment. Mr. Mc Gregor agreeing entirely with Mr. Webster in the propriety of a mutual giving and taking to avoid a rupture, and the more especially as the whole territory in dispute was not worth £20,000 to either power. while the preparations alone for a war would cost a great deal more before the parties could come into actual conflict, com municated the contents of Mr. Webster's letter to Lord John Russell, who at the time was living in the neighborhood of Edin-burgh, and in reply received a letter from Lord John, in which he stated his entire accordance with the proposal recommended by Mr. Webster, and approved of by Mr. McGregor, and requested the latter, as he, Lord John, was not in a position to do it himself, to intimate his opinion to Lord Aberdeen. Mr. McGregor, through Lord Canning, under-secretary for the Foreign Department, did so, and the result was that the first packet that left England carried out to America the proposal, in accordance with the communication already referred to, on which the treaty of Oregon was hap-pily concluded."

Editor of British Colonist :- Abuse is no argument, nor are personalities; but HIBBEN & CARSWELL they are often the means of avoiding the main question in an argument, which, in Will be glad to see all their old friends and this instance, is that of having dishonorably taken an island in time of peace, and when nobody was there to defend it.

When "Scalpel," alias the editor of the Gazette, talks of my "arrant ignorance," does he mean to say that Daniel Webster was not the soul of every discussion appertaining to the 49th latitude and boundary question, or that Lord Ashburton had nothing to do with it?

As to the meaning of the Spanish word canal, we all know it, and I truly observed that the "Canal de Harro" was invariably so called on the maps, in opposition to the "Strait of Rosario,"—in Spanish Estrecho. And what of that! except that, as I have Patent just said, all this has nothing to do with the Alcohol. question, which has been carefully avoided, " et pour cause."

My blunt exposure of facts, can hardly have pleased in some quarters; but the general sympathy and open-hearted welcome I have met with everywhere else, even among Americans, who regard the dignity of their country, have plainly told me where public opinion lies.

"Wiseacre," "Sir Oracle," "arrantly ignorant," "blunderer," "full of assurance," are some of the choice epithets applied by an American newspaper in an English colony, to an Englishman, for boldly asserting the dignity of his country, and the necessity of good faith in treaties! Wiseacre or no wiseacre, I stand firmer on that ground than the newspaper which attempts to render me ridiculous, and which is neither English nor worthy of Americans-neither fish, flesh, nor good red ALFRED WADDINGTON. herring.
